

Independent
behaviors should be isolated from each other

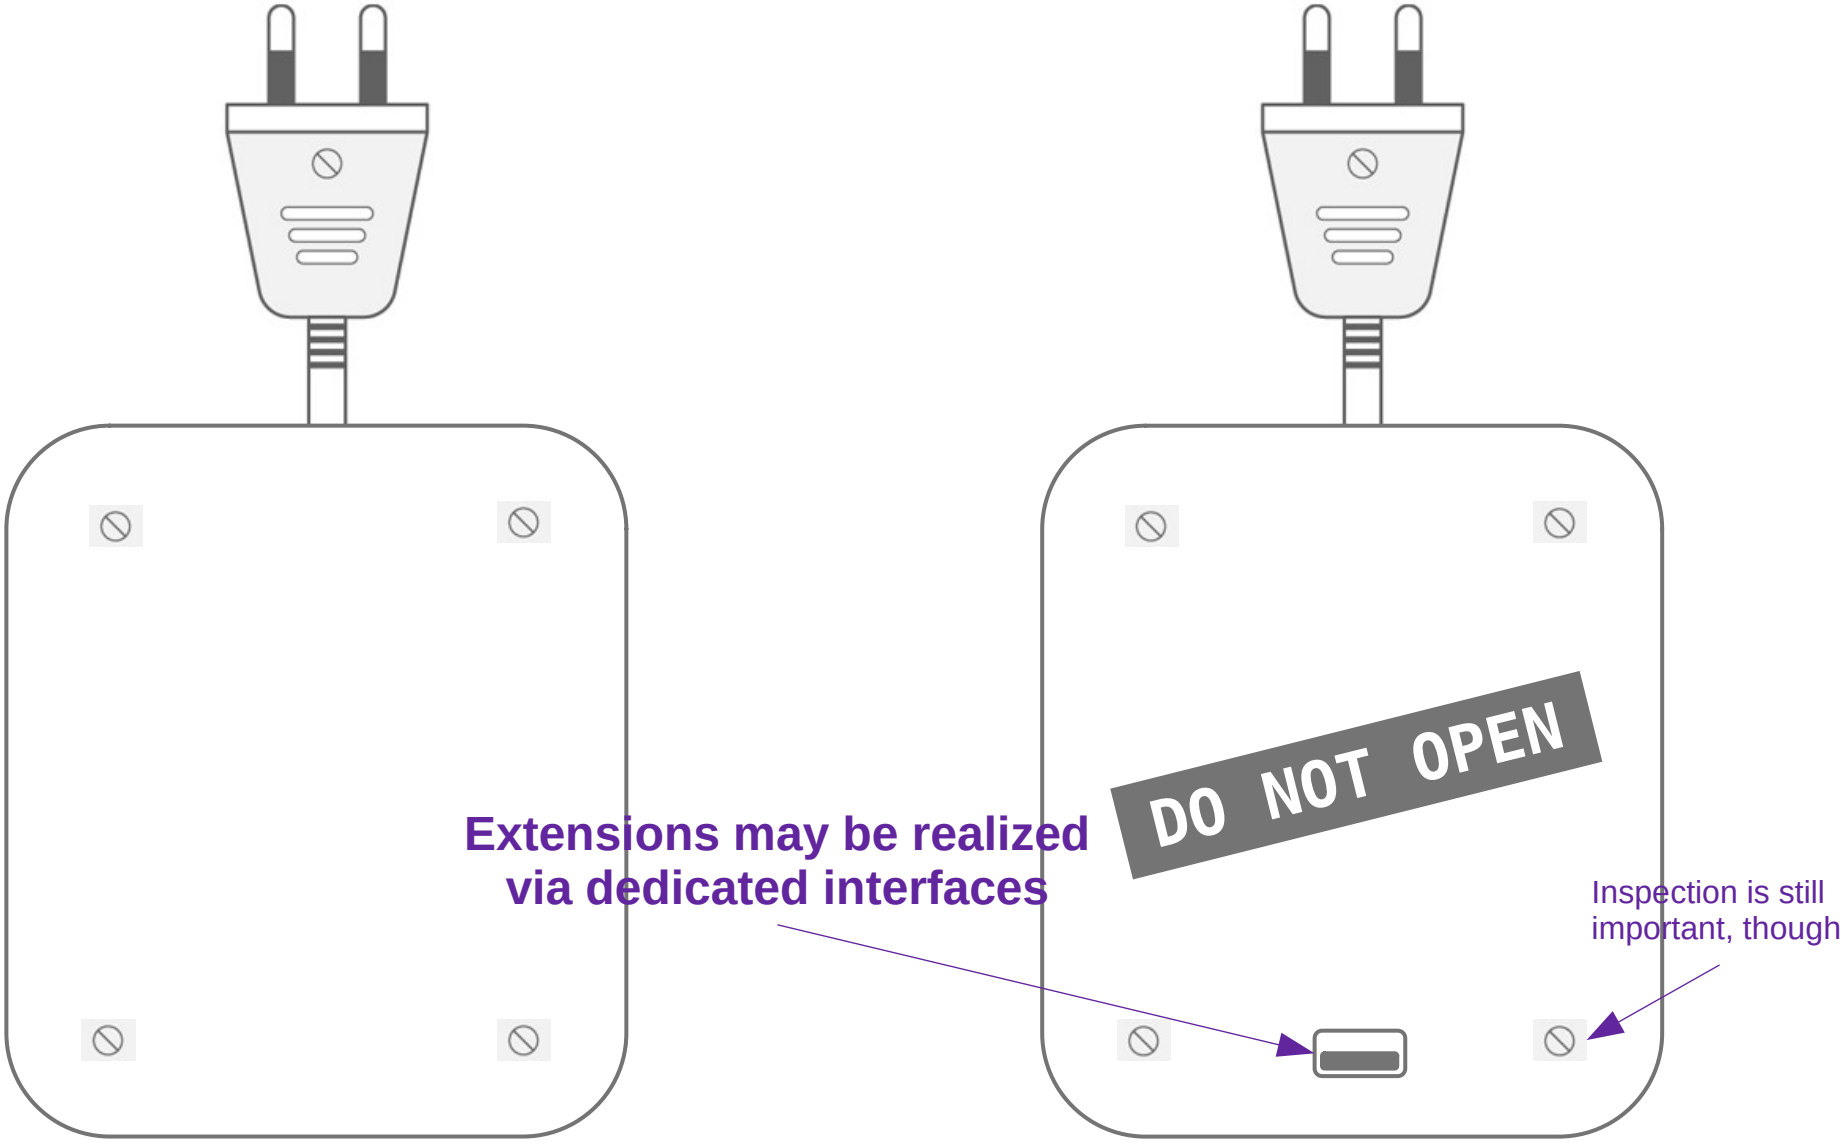
DO NOT OPEN



DO NOT OPEN
Extensions may be realized
via dedicated interfaces Inspection is still important, though

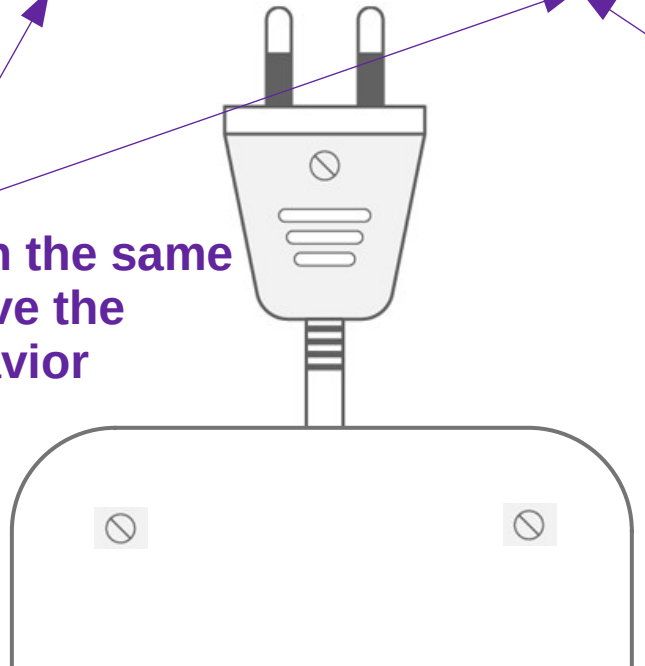
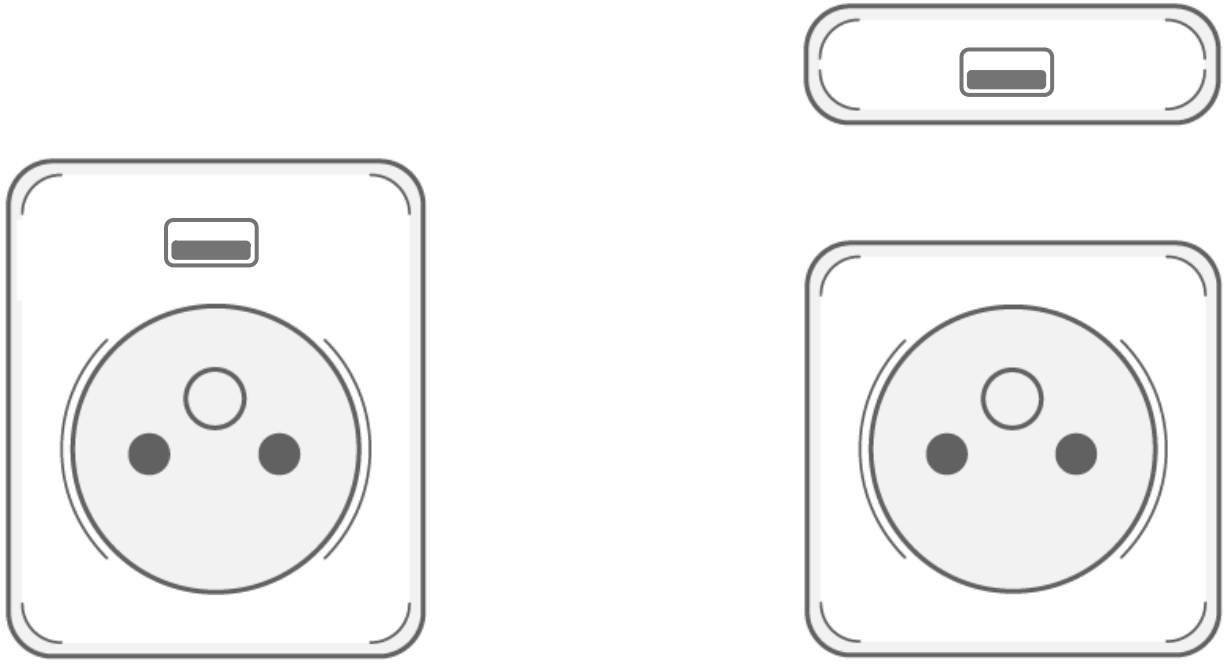
Components with the same interface have the same behavior

Components with different behaviors should have different interfaces





Independent interfaces should be provided separately

Is this feature really needed?
If two interfaces are available, a component should choose the most generic one